

President's/CEO Report

Allen Thiessen/Jason Brothen

With so many aspects of our lives being disrupted in 2020, one thing has stayed consistent, electricity.

We knew as the COVID-19 pandemic started that we must be a stable part of our member's lives. The state and federal government asked cooperatives to take every precaution necessary to protect our employees and members. The overall fear was that if electrical companies lost workers to the COVID-19 illness, our power grid could be compromised if a storm situation arose, or in the event of a major outage. LYREC employees work closely daily; LYREC has implemented several safety protocols and taken the necessary precautions to keep our employees safe. Regardless of your views on the COVID-19 pandemic, we must continue to follow the direction given by our national organization along with the local, state, and federal agencies and decide what is best for our cooperative staff and members.

This year the board has proposed some changes to the bylaws. It is important that we continue to update our governing document with the evolution of our cooperative. This year we are proposing changes that also align with Montana law. It was apparent in the past legislative session that our state representatives wanted to see the coops evolve with their overwhelming approval of a bill that will allow flexibility in voting and meetings. These changes will not take anything away from our cooperative model, but they will allow us to expand our reach and involvement to the membership.

As you can see from the financial statements, LYREC is in a sound financial condition. Our board and staff have put a lot of effort into detailing the budget over the years, and it shows by having a strong financial position. LYREC takes a proactive approach to ensure the cooperative is financially sound due to the uncertainty of the future energy market and mother nature. Our power supplier, Upper Missouri Power Cooperative, which blends our allocation of federal power from Western Area Power Administration with cooperative owned generation from Basin Electric Power Cooperative, continues to play a very large role in our rate design and future decisions. Our power suppliers are experiencing a shift in the industry that affects how LYREC plans. As part of the strategic discussion, we are looking at all aspects of our business, and the adjustments that will need to be made due to the changes with our power suppliers. As cooperatives, we have seen these challenges before and moving forward with our membership's support, we are confident that we will make the right decisions and continue to supply safe, reliable power at an affordable cost. As we adapt to our changing power market, the membership can rest easy that our power supply is adequate, reliable, and safe.

In 2020, our operations department continued the preventive maintenance such as pole replacements, underground replacements, updating old metering services that cause safety concerns, and testing of protection devices throughout the system. The yearly maintenance we perform has paid off with a decline in system outages.

Along with the maintenance, we did complete the first part of our transmission line from our Marley substation to a new Sanderson substation. We also started the second phase of the project at our new Romo substation, which will be replacing our old Bainville and Buford substations. The new transmission line and substations are upgrading old facilities and will provide a good backbone for many years.

We take great pride in our reliability. We LOVE that you don't have to spend time worrying if your lights will come on when you flip the switch. Our mission is to improve your lives and our communities by delivering affordable, reliable, and safe electricity.

LYREC is committed to maintaining open communication with our members. We will be posting important information regarding cooperative business on social media, our website and our monthly magazine. We will also be looking for additional ways to meet with members. Thank you for your support and until we meet again, stay safe.

The LYREC logo features the letters 'LYREC' in a bold, sans-serif font. The 'L' and 'Y' are black, while the 'R' and 'E' are orange, and the 'C' is black. The letters are closely spaced and have a slight shadow effect.
